Fulbright to Press for Hearings

Try to Kidnap Four Russians Is Failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright says most Americans think President Nixon is getting the United States out of Vietnam, but he sees the President's goal as making continued U.S. presence there politically tolerable.

For this reason, the Arkansas Democrat said in an interview, he plans to press hearings by his Foreign Relations Committee on various aspects of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The next round, after the Senate's Easter holidays, will deal with the social and economic impact on South Vietnam of the large U.S. presence. The purpose, as with many of Fulbright's hearings, is to educate Americans.

"They think he is in the process of getting us out," he said. "I think he wants to make the continued U.S. presence in Vietnam politically tolerable."

The problem, Fulbright said, is how to get this point across. "If I knew that," he said, "it would be easy. That's what I'm groping for."

Sen. George D. Aiken, the committee's senior Republican, agreed with Fulbright that President Nixon's troop with-change indications that the outcome was in doubt, but they gave Carswell supporters a psychological boost after two weeks in which opponents have been gaining strength.

It also put some pressure on uncommitted Republicans—who are believed to hold the key to the outcome.

Actually, Cooper had been counted as one of 40 Carswell supporters in the latest Associated Press tally, which lists 34 senators against the judge.

But his position on the recommitment move had not been known, and there had been speculation he might support the move in the wake of increasing opposition to Carswell.

The telegram from Carswell's fellow appeals court judges said, "We hereby express our complete confidence in him as nominee for associate justice of the Supreme Court, from the standpoint of integrity, fairness and ability."

The wire came after disclosure that the former chief judge of the 5th Court of Appeals, Elbert P. Tuttle, and another member, Judge John Minor Wisdom, had withheld endorsement.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Four young men failed in an attempt to kidnap two Russian diplomats Sunday night, apparently to retaliate for the kidnapping last week of a non-Communist diplomat by a left-wing Argentine organization.

A patrolman opened fire as the kidnappers tried to drive off with their captives in a Soviet Embassy limousine. The shots smashed the rear window of the limousine and a apparently wounded both diplomats and kidnappers.

Unconfirmed reports said the Soviet commercial attaché, Ivan N. Diakov, was one of the diplomats.

Beyond confirming that a kidnapping had been attempted and had failed, the police and an embassy spokesman declined to give any information.

But a little-known right-wing organization called "Mano" hand-issued a communique describing the four kidnappers as "heroes."

Police said the Foreign Ministry would have to study the case before they could make any statement. But Alberto Gonzalez

Hope City Park Youth Center was broken into sometime between Saturday, March 21, at 11 p.m. and Thursday, March 26, when it was discovered by Director George Straughter. Apparently after taking money, the thieves destroyed the door on the youth center building and door to the swimming pool.

Magno, chief of a local police office, denied a report that one of the injured kidnappers had been identified by a hospital nurse as a federal policeman.

Witnesses said the four young men, brandishing weapons, stopped the diplomats as they were garaging the embassy limousine after an outing with their wives and children.

The Easter Weekend Was Very Deadly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Easter weekend was one of the deadliest weekends on Arkansas' highways this year, with ten fatalities reported.

The State Police said that total was matched only by the last weekend in February when 10 highway deaths were also recorded.

In almost every accident, the highways were reported wet as Arkansas experienced a rainy, cold Easter weekend.

The Associated Press weekend highway death count began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Sunday.

Five accidents accounted for the total. However, there were two triple-fatality accidents and one accident claimed two lives.

A two-car crash early Sunday on Arkansas 71 in Madison County killed Kenneth Counts, 20, of Hindsville, Kenneth Keck, 21, of Huntsville and Henry Candanoca, 32, of Springdale.

Three persons were killed Saturday in a head-on collision at the junction of U.S. 65 and Arkansas 144 at Gould.

Police identified the victims as Myrtle Schlem, 40, of Heber Springs, Scott Frye, 1, and David Frye, 2, both of Pine Bluff.

Also killed Saturday were Joseph Filan of North Little Rock and Hardis Patterson, 28, of Redfield. Police said the accident occurred on U.S. 65 near Redfield.

Rules Man Who Quit Guard Faces Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court rejected today the appeal of a Minnesota man who dropped out of the National Guard claiming he is a conscientious objector to the Vietnam war and now faces trial as a deserter.

The court turned down the petition of Darwin Earl Schultz, 28, of New Brighton, without commenting on his legal claims.

After more than three years service in the guard, Schultz stopped attending drills in 1967 and in 1968 was ordered to report to active Army duty for a period of more than a year and a half.

When Schultz did not report to Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., he was arrested as a deserter.

METHODIST KINDERGARTEN HAS EASTER PARTY

The children of the Methodist Kindergarten observed the Easter season with a variety of activities. Beginning with viewing a film of the Palm Sunday story, they enjoyed other stories about the life of Jesus. In planning for the Easter party on Thursday, the children dyed Easter eggs, made bunny headresses for the boys and Spring hats for the girls. Two children celebrated their sixth birthdays at the kindergarten. On Wednesday, Mrs. Charles Townsend sent gaily colored miniature Easter baskets filled with candy eggs as favors to mark the birthday of her daughter, Janna. Then, on Thursday, Mrs. Bennett Wood sent a treat of beautifully decorated cup cakes in the Easter motif, to celebrate the birthday of her son, Jon.

The high point of the week was the egg hunt on Thursday on the lawn. For the hunt the children used sacks they had decorated with bunny faces.

Marty Robbins Returns to Ole Opry

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Country music star Marty Robbins has returned to the stage of the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville just two months after he underwent heart surgery.

"I had so many things I was going to say," Robbins told the packed Opry House. "But now, I can't think of anything to say, so I guess I'll have to sing for you."

Robbins, who had parts of arteries leading to the heart transplanted in his Jan. 27 operation, sang and the audience reacted by calling "more, more, more."

The curtain on the Opry stage closed 20 minutes late Saturday night and as it came down one stagehand commented on Robbins' performance, "Boy, he really sang his heart out."

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us! it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

IGNORANCE IS NO PROTECTION

Dear Helen: I'm happily married. Our first baby will be born next month. Why I'm not a bundle of neuroses I'll never know, because my mother told me absolutely nothing about the facts of life, except that "married women have to submit to men because they're 'that way.'"

When I was very young, I had polio which left me with a twisted foot. After I announced our engagement, she said I could never have children because the disease had paralyzed me inside. I went through torture, worrying about it. Somehow you believe your parents even more than doctors. Luckily I have the most understanding and patient husband in the world.

But now, it's starting all over again with my younger sister. Mom tells her nothing, but implies that men are beasts. I have a fine book on human sexuality which helped me a lot. So I gave it to her, but Mom threw a fit, called it a "dirty book" and told me to stop poisoning Sis's mind. In fact, I'm not welcome at the house anymore, though she visits me whenever possible.

The book has the Parents Magazine seal of approval and is for anyone over 12. How can I keep my sister from getting a warped viewpoint of life?—OLD-ER SIS

Dear Sis: Give your sister credit for having the same kind of common sense that nulled YOU through a repressive childhood. And at every opportunity, let her know that ignorance is no protection—so you'll answer any questions with complete honesty.—H.

Dear Helen: My husband has often told me this in private, but last night he said to friends, "I have to work my life away for my one big mistake—getting married!"

One of the friends reminded him that his wife takes care of him, and two children, the house, cooks, mends, etc. He said, "I could have that done by hiring someone." He wasn't kidding.

What would you do with a man like this?—NOT NEEDED

Dear N.N.: I'd take a month's vacation and let him see the disadvantages of hired help (if he can find any.) And I'd spend the month making myself into a new woman—the kind no husband could call a "mistake."—H.

Dear Helen: Our daughter is a senior in high school. She doesn't do any work around the house, except to dry dishes at night, and keep her room up. She has a job, and works 15 hours a week, but not on weekends, so she would have time to help me. But she "just does not get around to it," and I'm left with a whole house to keep up.

My husband is no help either, saying I'm home all day, and yard work is enough, on his weekends.

How can I get more cooperation?—HOUSE SLAVE

Dear H.S. Look, friend: Your husband works 40 hours a week; your daughter devotes a least nine hours a day to school and a job—not including homework. Prove you "Slave" longer than that in your house, and I'll offer sympathy. Not before!—H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Weekly
NEW YORK (AP)—Network television specials over the weekend moved from the usual depths with Jacques Cousteau to the soaring firmament of Beethoven's testament of faith. There was also a delightful stop-over in our familiar world of salt, flags, popcorn and lead pencils.

Saturday night's "Water Planet," winding up ABC's "Cosmos" series, demonstrated simply and dramatically that the sea is the first link in an endless ecological cycle. Cousteau, when he talks of the sea and the life in it, speaks like a lover and poet.

He told us that our earth is the only planet with water and that the sea is the source of all our precious waters. In his calm way, he made the importance of doing something about pollution seem the most important aspect of our lives.

Earlier in the day, NBC struck a blow for quality children's programming. It was an hour special called "Hottog," which only partly suggests the show's dimension.

The hour consisted simply of taking a dozen of the most common items of our daily lives and showing how they come into existence. It was done with humor against a background of rollicking music.

For the humor, the producer had Woody Allen, Tom Smothers and Joanne Worley invent outrageous tall stories on almost any subject they were asked about.

Allen, absolutely deadpan, was the best. One of his stories was that the hottog was invented by the "Earl of Hottog," who strung 1,100 of them together to escape over a prison wall. He explained that lines on highways are painted by passengers with steady hands in low-flying airplanes—two or three inches above the ground—who "stick the paint brushes outside the fuselage."

Sequences showing how such things are really done were not only interesting but highly instructive. This viewer was as amazed as Joanne Worley to find that the fortunes are placed inside the cookies after they are baked but not yet hard.

It was a delightful hour for, as they are so fond of saying, children of all ages.

It is very probable that Leonard Bernstein has done more

Room to Trap Dirt

Before the spring rains sets in, try a "mudroom" to trap dirt before it gets into the house. Ideally, it should have a sink with hot and cold water, a place to hang jackets and store boots, counter space next to the sink for putting flowers or vegetables as they're cleaned, a water closet and a shower for use by the "hands," farm or otherwise, who live at your house.

Deepest lake in the United States is Crater Lake, Ore., with a depth of 1,932 feet.

The image is grainy and has a stark, dramatic quality. In the bottom right corner, there is a small logo that reads "MEA".

Construction of a new highway bridge was halted recently to avoid disturbing about 65,000 ducks and geese. The World Almanac says. When migrant birds settled near the bridge site, wildlife officials ordered further work to be stopped, fearing that construction noises might have scared the birds away. Highway planners and builders are today striving to preserve and protect America's ecology.

Dennis Turner Fires Continue to Add Loses Appeal to Turkey Quake Toll Which May Run 1,300

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court ruled today that a man could be tried on a robbery charge after being acquitted of a murder charge that arose from the same act.

The court, by a 4-3 vote, rejected the argument that a robbery charge could place the defendant in double jeopardy even though the acquittal in the murder case was on a charge that the murder was committed during the perpetration of a robbery.

Chief Justice Carleton Harris wrote the majority opinion which said, "The test is not whether the defendant has already been tried for the same act, but whether he has been put in jeopardy for the same offense."

GEDIZ, Turkey (AP) — This earthquake-ravaged town was shaken by new tremors today but they caused no additional damage or deaths. The death toll from the weekend quake, officials fear, may reach 1,300.

Rain spattered down on the last of the fires which followed the quake.

Archaeologists, troops and highway workers combed through the rubble for victims. New tremors shook the area spreading panic among survivors.

The quake rumbled along the dangerous Anatolian Fault in western Turkey Saturday night. It flattened half of this town of 8,000 persons 150 miles south of Istanbul and devastated other towns and villages for miles around.

Survivors wandered in a daze through the smoldering rain-soaked ruins. Some wept for their lost families. Others were still numbed, their faces pale and blank.

Housing Minister Hayrettin Nakipoglu surveyed the area and estimated that 1,000 persons had died in Gediz and surrounding villages.

By Sunday night, 586 bodies had been found, and there were 460 injured counted.

Despite a steady rain, a whole district of Gediz was burning. An entire village nearby was also in flames, and the fires burned many bodies that had been placed next to the ruined houses where the deaths occurred.

The rain left a thick, greasy mud, hampering relief workers struggling to find the dead, treat the injured and free anyone still alive and buried under debris.

The ground shook periodically, reminding survivors that they lived in a zone traditionally beset by earth tremblings and quakes.

Tents sprang up in Gediz and environs to house the homeless. In Eskisehir and Kutahya, two large cities near the disaster area, all the output of bakeries, including loaves still warm from the oven, was trucked to the quake survivors.

The road from Eskisehir and Kutahya was jammed with fire engines, trucks carrying relief supplies and trailers hauling bulldozers.

Passing them going the other way were dozens of ambulances and pickup trucks taking the injured to Kutahya.

The district administrator of Gediz telephoned the governor of neighboring Aydin province asking for help.

"The administrator was crying," the governor said. "He told me please to send equipment to move the rubble. I have sent all the heavy equipment in my district to Gediz."

Gov. Tusan Aras of Kutahya Province said he needed at least 7,000 tents to shelter the homeless. The Red Crescent relief organization sent in 2,300 tents, along with blankets, a 50-bed mobile hospital and other supplies.

In five previous quakes along the Anatolian Fault in the last five years, a total of 2,679 Turks have been killed. The worst tremor along the fault occurred in 1939, in the eastern province of Erzincan, when 30,000 were killed.

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese rangers and armored units were pulled off the Cambodian border today and moved southwest in the Mekong Delta to reinforce a training camp and towns and outposts battered by two days of North Vietnamese attacks.

Reports from the field said 30 to 40 persons, military and civilian, have been killed and some 200 wounded in the rocket and mortar bombardments and ground attacks that began late Saturday and continued intermittently through today.

The flareup in the Seven Mountains area of the western Mekong Delta, 120 miles west of Saigon, followed several days of fighting along the Cambodian border during which South Vietnamese forces at least twice forged into Cambodia to battle the Viet Cong.

Associated Press correspondent Michael Putzel reported from Chau Doc that elements of three armored squadrons and two ranger battalions pulled out of the border area during the last 24 hours and rushed 30 miles southwest to the Seven Mountains.

Officers told Putzel that the border operation had been completed and was not cut short to allow the shift to the area where North Vietnamese regulars in mountain caves and hideouts hurled rockets and mortars at government posts.

From 1,600-foot Nui Cam, they repeatedly shelled the district town of Tri Ton and the nearby Chi Lang military training center, the biggest in the delta, and inflicted scores of casualties.

The U.S. Command helped out early today with two B52 strikes to back up continuing tactical air strikes and artillery fire against the mountain.

Men Rushed to Help Two Outposts

The case stems from Hempstead County Circuit Court where Judge W. H. Arnold III rejected a motion to dismiss the robbery charge against Dennis Turner, who appealed to the Supreme Court.

Turner was charged with murder while perpetrating a robbery and premeditated murder in the gunshot death of Larry Wayne Yates on Dec. 25, 1968. The state said Yates was robbed of more than $300.

Turner was acquitted April 24, 1969, on the murder charge. Last Oct. 3, the charge of robbery was filed against him in connection with the same incident.

The appeal said the second charge constituted double jeopardy because the robbery count and the murder charge "arose out of the same set of facts, circumstances and on the same occasion."

"The same testimony adduced by the State of Arkansas in the murder trial will not necessarily be reintroduced in this robbery charge," the defense argued before the high court.

Turner's lawyers contended that the jury, to find him guilty of murder in the perpetration of a felony, precluded a trial on the felony robbery charge.

Harris cited a case in the state of Washington where the Washington Supreme Court ruled, "A person is not put in second jeopardy by successive trials unless they involve not only the same act but also the same offense."

The Arkansas Supreme Court also cited an Idaho ruling which said "the allegation that the homicide occurred in the perpetration of a felony does not charge the accused with the same offense."

Helping a man who is out of work through no fault of his own is one thing. Paying benefits to people who walk off their jobs and stay off on purpose is quite another. It is bad policy to have governmental programs subsidize strikes and promote unemployment chosen by the unemployed.—Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press

Credit Risk

If you had a $5,000 bill in your purse or billfold, would you feel uneasy? Most likely the answer is yes. But the fact is, you very likely do have the equivalent of a $5,000 bill in your possession at this very moment. This is the amount that a simple credit card is worth in the hands of a resourceful swindler. Credit card swindling is a booming business.

Authorities in Chicago broke up one of the biggest swindles of all time. Using credit cards, a 32-member ring managed to rake in more than $10 million before they were apprehended and indicted for mail fraud. Many of the cards used in this epic swindle were stolen from mailboxes of people who had received the cards, unsolicited, without prior notice.—Montgomery (Ala.) Journal

The Exhausting Battle Over Pollution Finds Cars Flunk the Test

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With some reluctance, federal officials have finally made public what they've known for a long time: A lot of cars off the assembly line flunk the air pollution test their hand-crafted prototypes passed easily.

That disclosure may help speed closing of a huge loophole in the auto pollution cleanup effort—a drive that often seems as hazy as a summer afternoon in Los Angeles.

Less than three weeks after a House subcommittee heard about the sad state of government anti-pollution testing, a General Motors vice president told two Senate subcommittees his company thinks it is ready to start wide-spread testing of assembly line vehicles.

Less than a year ago, auto makers refused a New Jersey request that they guarantee each 1970 car bought by the state would meet pollution control standards.

At the time, the companies said such a guarantee was impossible because in assembly line production, testing each individual engine to determine if it is within pollution control standards was impractical.

Some engines might pollute heavily, but others would operate so cleanly, the companies contended, that the average pollution of the entire state fleet would be within pollution control standards.

Now, even that sort of claim is being disputed.

"We have found that between 70 and 80 per cent of the cars that come under the standards are not meeting them," says Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., whose Public Health and Welfare subcommittee has been holding hearings on auto pollution.

"And what's more amazing," says Rogers, "is that the National Air Pollution Control Administration knows this and has known this."

Yet these same cars carry government certification that the particular model and engine were tested and met pollution control standards.

How come?

Because the hand-tooled prototype vehicles used in the certification tests performed better than the mass-produced production versions that turn up in dealers' showrooms.

"Have you ever had failure of a prototype?" Rogers asked John T. Middleton, head of the Air Pollution Control Administration.

"We have never had a failure in the vehicle finally passing the test," Middleton replied.

Did Middleton consider the baffling success of prototypes?

Cloudy skies, slowly rising temperatures and a possibility of showers was the weather outlook for Arkansas through Tuesday.

A weak high pressure system dominated the state's weather today and was expected to remain in Arkansas through Tuesday, the Weather Bureau said.

The bureau said the probability of rain would increase Tuesday.

The extended outlook called for skies to remain cloudy with a possibility of showers through Thursday, the bureau said.

Air night lows included 38 at Fayetteville, 37 at Harrison, 37 at Jonesboro, 40 at Pine Bluff, 43 at Texarkana, 39 at Dardanelle, Memphis and Little Rock and 42 at Fort Smith.

3 Accidents Reported by City Police

Three accidents were reported over the weekend by Hope City Police. On Highway 67 east cars driven by Jerry McWilliams of Prescott and William E. Fairchild of Roston collided. City Officers McCulley and Brown charged Fairchild with driving while intoxicated.

On Highway 67 west at Elm cars driven by Garry Dean Clark and John L. Lester collided with only fender damage resulting according to Officer McCulley.

Vehicles driven by James A. Worthing and Linda A. Polndexter, North Little Rock collided. Damage was light and no charge was filed.

Tax Returns Averaging More

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Emmett Cook Jr., assistant district director of the Internal Revenue Service, says income tax refunds issued to Arkansians are averaging about $35 more than last year.

Cook said Saturday that the elimination of the 1040-A short tax return form was partially responsible for the increase.

Two Charged for Stealing Gas

Two persons were charged with stealing gasoline from buses at Hope High School during the weekend. They were listed as Robert West and Luther C. Burton. Officers Hailom and Clark charged both with stealing gas and West with driving while intoxicated.

Carswell Forces Putting on Own Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two weeks of watching opponents make steady gains in their effort to keep G. Harrold Carswell off the Supreme Court, nomination supporters are putting on a push of their own.

Apparently dropping their early tactics of letting the critics do most of the talking, the Carswell forces opened up a much more aggressive campaign over the weekend.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst said Sunday opponents have lied in their attacks on Carswell's racial beliefs and judicial performance.

The No. 2 official in the Justice Department, Kleindienst also accused the prime movers of the Anti-Carswell forces of being politically motivated in the attacks on the nominee, now a judge on the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals.

He appeared on the ABC interview program "Issues and Answers."

Kleindienst's statements followed the White House release Saturday of a telegram signed by 11 of the 15 judges of the 5th Court of Appeals expressing confidence in Carswell.

In another Saturday development, 79 lawyers from Carswell's home town, Tallahassee, Fla., sent a letter to all 100 U.S. senators recommending him for the Supreme Court seat vacated last May by Abe Fortas.

Kleindienst also pointed to a "ringing endorsement" of Carswell by Sen. John Sherman Cooper and said the Kentucky Republican's stand should have a "very telling effect" on the nomination.

Cooper, who voted against Nixon's previous nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., announced Saturday he will vote against a motion by Sen. Birch E. Bayh, D-Ind., to scuttle the nomination by recommitting it to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

If that move is defeated, Cooper said, he will vote to confirm Carswell. The recommit vote is scheduled April 6. If it fails, the vote on confirmation is set for April 8.

None of the weekend developments, including Cooper's announcement, did anything to

Court Agrees to Take Up UMW Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to review a decision dismissing charges that the United Mine Workers union conspired with major coal producers to drive small marginal operators in the southeastern Tennessee coal field out of business.

The court will hear an appeal by the small operators. Their complaint had been dismissed by a federal court in Chattanooga, an action affirmed by a 4-4 vote of the U.S. Circuit Court in Cincinnati.

The appeal contends that the union, beginning in 1950, conspired with the major coal producing companies to fix and control prices and to create a monopoly. The principal part of the theory is that a 1950 national coal wage agreement was amended from time to time to impose impractical or impossible terms upon small operators.

Cambodia to Ask Aid From U.S., Allies

By T. JEFF WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Premier Lon Nol declared today Viet Cong troops continue to launch attacks in Cambodia and if they become more flagrant and are judged by the United Nations to be grave he will ask for military aid from the United States and other friendly countries.

He told a news conference today, however, he would not ask for troops.

"If we have enough weapons we can defend our territory ourselves," the army general added.

Nol contended that Viet Cong agents are whipping up villagers' sentiments for the return of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, ousted March 18 as chief of state, in a constitutional coup.

The United Nations has had little to do with the hostilities in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. But Nol's remarks, suggested he may be planning to make a complaint to the U.N. Security Council in New York.

Under Sihanouk, Cambodia complained periodically to the Security Council about alleged border incursions by U.S. and South Vietnamese forces from Vietnam.

Nol told the news conference his government planned to appeal to such countries as the United States and France for assistance against attacks by the Viet Cong.

"There is no harm in asking for help," he said.

The new premier held the news conference as the nation appeared to be moving toward civil war with the population beginning to choose sides over the leadership.

Violent demonstrations have erupted in towns and villages. In an attempt to check this movement, the army is trying to make a barrier of the Mekong River, which bisects the kingdom. No cars are allowed to cross on the river ferries, and only a few villagers now make the trip. Army troops guard all crossings, and gunboats dot the length of the river. Roads throughout the country are closed from dusk to dawn.

Troops are being moved into major trouble spots to quell demonstrations against the new government. Local police cannot be relied on, said one military captain in the provincial capital of Kompong Cham.

This has brought the army into confrontation with the people in several instances, and many Cambodians have been killed. In Kompong Cham, on the Mekong, troops opened fire last week after demonstrators killed two anti-Sihanouk national assemblymen. The troops killed 29 and wounded another 68.

More dangerous for the new government's fragile hold on power are reports from informed French sources that some army units are defecting to Sihanouk's side. These could not be confirmed.

Pro-Sihanouk elements, in some cases apparently organized by the more disciplined Viet Cong, are striking back violently.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of Judge G. Harrold Carswell's nomination to the Supreme Court have altered their strategy with strong weekend statements by Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and words of support from judges currently sitting with Carswell and lawyers who have practiced before him. Earlier, the supporters were letting the critics do most of the talking.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The air-controller sick-out, now in its sixth day, is cutting deeper into air travel and has moved into legal maneuvers, negotiations and apprehension over flight safety. Easter weekend flight departures were delayed up to 6 1/2 hours in the Northeast and Midwest.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strong support among House Democrats for a measure to lower the voting age to 18 has overcome resistance of the proposal's chief foe, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., though still opposing teen-age voting, will now seek a vote on the proposal and an extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Act. Passing the extension is Celler's main interest.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's special hunger committee charges a special federal program to fight malnutrition among children and pregnant women is falling far short of its goals, often because agencies impose "improper" criteria on their receipt.

Holiday traffic was snarled many traditional Easter celebrations spoiled by heavy snow and wintry weather Sunday over much of the nation.

KEY BECAVINE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon flew back to Washington today for a late afternoon conference with Postmaster General Winton M. Blount on negotiations aimed at averting another postal crisis.

Aides said Nixon had considered returning to the capital Sunday night but decided instead to have an early morning telephone conference with Blount today, to be followed up with a face-to-face meeting at 5 p.m.

Latest indications have been that talks between government officials and leaders of seven postal unions have been going well.

Nixon, who spent a four-day Easter weekend in Florida and the Bahamas, also was keeping in close touch with potentially explosive events in Cambodia, the slowdown by many air traffic controllers, and the battle to win confirmation of G. Harrold Carswell as an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

Flanked by members of his family, Nixon attended Easter services Sunday at Key Biscayne's modernistic Presbyterian Church. He heard the Rev. John A. Huffman Jr. pray that God would give the chief executive "superhuman strength for superhuman tasks, compassion for human needs, flexibility for changing what once was considered right and now seems wrong."

White House sources indicated part of the President's time during the coming week will involve meetings with key Republicans in the Senate, scheduled to vote April 8 on a motion to send the Carswell nomination back to committee, where it presumably would be buried.

They noted Nixon had met in Washington with Sen. John Sherman Cooper, Kentucky Republican who subsequently Saturday gave his full support for the Carswell nomination.

A bizarre murder which left the bodies of a man and a woman on the side of a rural road in northwestern Hempstead last the Yancy community was solved today by police.

The man was positively identified by Capt. Milton Mosier of the Arkansas State Police and Coroner J. T. Hootch as Paul Burton, about 40, of Delight, Okla., (natively identified the woman, about 40, as a Nashville mother of seven children. However, no positive identification had been made when the Star went to press.

The partially clothed bodies were found about 7 a.m. Monday by Sam Johnson, a Negro resident of the area who immediately notified police.

Actual cause of death could not be determined immediately but in all probability both were shot. The bodies were taken to Little Rock for an autopsy.

Officers said a person had been arrested in Mount Pleasant, Texas. Officers said he was driving an auto registered in the name of Parkon.

Sheriff Jimmie Griffin and Capt. Mosier left for Mount Pleasant early Monday afternoon to question the suspect.

Carter Sutton, Hempstead County Tax Assessor, hereby gives a report of the condition of his office to the tax-payers of Hempstead County.

"When I took office as your Tax Assessor the total assessment for Hempstead County was $10,337,107. The records of 1969 assessments show the total to now be $17,472,205, which is a marked increase in assessed valuation.

The Assessment Coordination Division of the Public Service Commission in Little Rock certified to this office the official ratio of assessed value in Hempstead County to be 18 per cent, which meets the requirement of this office.

99,000 acres of timberland belonging to major timber companies in Hempstead County were increased in value in 1969 and will be added to taxes collected in 1970, making about an eight million dollar gain overall.

From these figures I believe you can clearly see that the Tax Assessor's Office has been making every effort to keep the assessments in Hempstead County in line with present day values."
